Cannabis Ruderalis and Autoflowering
The Medicinal Benefits of Cannabis

Cannabis ruderalis has been identified as a third species of the Cannabis family.

Autoflowering is when the cannabis plant switches to the flowering stage based on age rather than from a ratio of light to dark hours that is required for sativa and indica strains and hybrids. What makes autoflowering possible in cannabis strains is the addition of the ruderalis sub-species of cannabis.

This book provides an overview on the topic of autoflowering. It also discusses the cannabigerol cannabinoid, a precursor to all the other cannabinoids. There is plenty of misinformation out there and this book does help to dispel this misinformation and will bring you up to speed on cannabis and its amazing health benefits.
